David's advisory and taxation expertise covers the entire lifecycle of private enterprises, from startup through to succession. Over the last decade, he has provided strategic compliance and advisory services for a range of clients spanning high net wealth individuals through to large intergenerational family businesses.

His core strength lies in private client wealth management, specifically in advising on strategic tax planning, operational management and tax-effective business structures. He has industry-specific expertise, notably within the medical and healthcare sectors, as well as property and finance.

In the years prior to commencing at Evans + Ayers, David worked with international Big 4 and prominent mid-tier chartered accounting firms in Adelaide. During this time, David worked across various teams specializing in technical tax, financial planning and accounting. The culmination of this experience has equipped David to assist the private client and family business markets with tailored advice to achieve their broader wealth management objectives.

He also spent valuable time early in his career in the property development sector, gaining hands-on commercial experience in property development operations, mortgage loan approvals, credit analysis and compliance.
